ADVERTISEMENT.

A YEAR ago I had no intention of publishing such a book as this. It may indeed serve as a sample of two long cherished projects, guides to the choice of classical and of theological books: but the special sting, which drove me from less irksome labours, was the discovery, in the spring of this year, that many even of our best Cambridge students no longer concern themselves with the general history of Greek and Roman literature. In some respects recent changes have worked well; philosophy, history, comparative philology, are more intelligently studied: but the free and open range of reading, where the learner follows mainly his native bent and powers, has lost its charms. In the first instance, as in duty bound, I address myself to our own tirones, but I also wish to serve teachers, editors, librarians and booksellers. It is not to the credit of England that our editions of the classics are often launched into the world on an apparatus slender for an inquisitive schoolboy. If we are to mend, bibliography must be rescued from the contempt under which it rusts. To see farther than the giants of the past, dwarfs must fain climb upon their shoulders.

I have taken as a basis the Grundriss zu Vorlesungen über die römische Litteraturgeschichte von E. Hübner<sup>3</sup> Berlin Weidmann 1872. Whatever changes seemed expedient I have freely made. Rash and lawless Athesen, as those of Lehrs in Horace, Ribbeck in Juvenal, I have omitted, holding with Madvig<sup>1</sup> that if the mania for destructive criticism spreads, and is not thrown off as a passing fever, classical studies themselves will be forsaken by reasonable men, desirous of firm and common ground on which to stand and advance. Mr Munro has kindly weeded the titles relating to Lucretius and Catullus. But the chief change consists in very large additions<sup>2</sup>; in the original e.g. the article 'Cicero' occupies less than 5 pages, and the whole book but 119. I have saved room by curtailing titles and by the use of abbreviations; a reference once for all to the guide to the choice of classical books by Joseph Bickersteth Mayor M.A. (London Bell 1874) enables me to pass over many recent English publications.

Some may be surprised to see old editions registered, but I know that scholars of the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries often did more for interpretation than has been done since; the notes amassed in Burman's Petronius or Drakenborch's Livy or Oudendorp's Apuleius are by no means obsolete lumber, but to this day necessary to all serious students of those authors. The catalogues of the libraries formed e.g. by John Mitford, Gottfried Hermann, Otto Jahn, prove that those who are most abreast with the rising tide of knowledge are most fearful of losing the inheritance of the past.

<sup>1</sup> When I met prof. Madvig at the Leyden tercentenary in February 1875, he expressed himself very strongly in this sense; in print also his high authority has always demanded reason and evidence for every change.

<sup>2</sup> Taken in most cases from the authorities named pp. 3—5, but often from actual inspection of the books themselves or from the prefaces of the principal editions and from special bibliographies. To many a friend, often of thirty years' standing or more, I needed no introduction. For bibliography my debt is greatest to Schweiger, Bähr, Teuffel, Engelmann and Lowndes; but for mastery of the subject and condensed power Bernhardt is superior to all his rivals.

In saying this, I may appear to contradict one who has laid classical students under great obligations, by his sympathetic and learned portrait of one of the noblest of the race: but Mr Pattison, I doubt not, laments, as much as I do, the fashionable neglect of 'the living works of dead authors,' though he says<sup>1</sup>: 'Well done, or ill done, or half done, however, Isaac Casaubon's books are now consigned to one common oblivion. They are written in Latin, and scholar's Latin of the renaissance is a peculiar language, accessible to a very circumscribed public. But this is not all. Even for this circumscribed public of scholars Casaubon's books have but a secondary value. Philology is a science, not a fine art; and it is the fate of science that the books, in which it is consigned, are in a constant state of supersession. A work of literature may be surpassed but not superseded. The interpreter of the classics works for his own age only. He is the medium through which we read an ancient book, and the medium must be in the language and mode of our own day. It must possess all the latest improvements. The books of the scholars of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries have therefore for us little more than an historical interest. They will be visited only by those curious enquirers, who may wish to acquaint themselves with the history of learning. The biographical data will be of more interest than the philological matter. Yet as history makes itself from age to age, the oldest names must tend to recede from view. We cannot afford to know all about everybody. How many years will elapse before another reader will go through, as the present writer has done, the bulky folio of Isaac Casaubon's printed epistles<sup>1</sup>, or the seven volumes of unprinted answers of his correspondents in the Burney collection ?'

For my part I question whether one in ten of those who read the Augustan history, or Suetonius, or Theophrastus, or Strabo, or Athenaeus, feels at liberty to slight Casaubon; and I am sure, that those who know his Persius best, endorse Scaliger's well-known saying. Indeed whoever in any age has traversed the whole compass of ancient learning, must remain a witness to all time.

If Mr Pattison however is speaking not of things as he thinks they should be, but as they are, his statement is borne out by one who, more than any Englishman of our time, knows from bitter experience, παθὼν ἔμαθε, the fickleness<sup>2</sup> of English literary taste :

'In taking leave of this department of his trade, Mr Bohn cannot help lamenting the enormous depreciation

<sup>1</sup> I can answer this challenge at once ; years ago, when inquiring into the life of Casaubon's friend Richard Thomson of Clare, I 'went through' and indexed the letters of Casaubon and Scaliger. Probably other living Englishmen have done the same. He would be a bold man e.g. who would undertake to name the printed correspondence of men of letters during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, which the venerable president of the Chetham society has not digested.

which has taken place of late years in the mercantile value of foreign, and especially classical and philological, literature; books of intrinsic value, which formerly used to sell readily for guineas, and many of them neither superseded nor even displaced by other editions, now sell for shillings, for no other reason that the writer can perceive than that recondite learning in this country is giving way to ephemeral and light reading.'

'The purchasers at the present sale will have the benefit of this state of things.'

This hint may be of service to librarians, to scholars forming their private libraries, to all who wish to do much, at small cost, for the benefit of a college or a poor student. A very large proportion of the Latin classics may now be purchased, in good editions, for the sum of ten pounds. The great lexicons of Stephanus, Gesner, Scheller and Forcellini (this last in the older editions) may be picked up for sums varying from 6s. to 20s. To the self-taught isolated student this state of the market offers a rare opportunity, and it is certain that, while many who live by teaching the classics, affect to despise them, others are rising, dissenting ministers, national schoolmasters, ladies, men occupied all day in labour or in trade, who covet the learning which the others disdain. I should hail with pleasure the announcement that such a nonconformist divine had received from his congregation a set of quarto variorum editions of the Latin authors; or that such a Manchester<sup>1</sup> merchant had added to Owens college library the folio translations of the classics, or two hundred editions of Horace<sup>1</sup>.

I make no apology for inserting the ecclesiastical writers in their places. Bähr, Bernhardy, Teuffel, following the example of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and the call of Niebuhr, have devoted much attention to the fathers. Hübner says: 'Dass die gesammte christliche römische Litteratur des dritten bis sechsten Jahrhunderts mit aufgenommen werden musste, versteht sich von selbst: wie man die römische Litteratur des dritten bis sechsten Jahrhunderts darstellen könne, ohne Männer wie Tertullian, Prudentius, Hieronymus und Augustinus eingehend zu besprechen, ist mir von jeher nicht deutlich gewesen.' What a harvest philology may reap on the field of the church, we have learnt from Rönisch and Paucker; the historian and antiquary will also find there untold stores of new materials.

I have given lists of the earlier English translations and have specified the editions which contain a complete index. Except in the case of technical authors, I have seldom cited recent translations; for the translator's art for two centuries has sunk amongst us too often to the level of a trade; the Elizabethan translators are mostly models of chaste and manly English. The two series of Latin classics issued by Valpy and Lemaire do indeed contain between them indexes to most of the authors, but as many libraries do not comprise these collections, I have named the indexes of many separate editions besides.

To return to the point from which I started. I regard him as in no liberal sense a classical scholar, who does not by degrees make himself acquainted with more than the mere titles<sup>1</sup> of all classical authors. It is now easy and cheap to procure, in Teubner's series, the best texts of the entire range of ancient letters; if a man has these on his shelves, and consults e.g. Dio or Suetonius or Pliny or Gellius or Plutarch, as he finds them quoted; if he reads in English translations parts or the whole of works which he lacks time to read in the original; if, on running over a page or two of a lexicon, or of such books as Schwegler's history or Becker's Gallus, he finds that he can estimate the comparative value of the authors cited, knows approximately their dates and the subjects of which they treat, then he has done that which they left undone who forced me to this toil, burdensome alike to me and to the printer.

<sup>1</sup> Some few years ago a Latin poet (I do not mean Plautus) was edited by an Englishman ignorant of his name; yet the nickname has stood for centuries pilloried on the threshold of the commentaries. I have been taken to task in print for preferring new sumpsinus to old mumpsinus, Publius to Publius Syrus.

MACMILLAN'S GLOBE LIBRARY.

Beautifully printed on toned paper and bound in cloth extra, gilt edges, price 4s. 6d. each; in cloth plain, 3s. 6d. Also kept in a variety of calf and morocco bindings at moderate prices.

Books, Wordsworth says, are

"the spirit breathed
By dead men to their kind;"

and the aim of the publishers of the Globe Library has been to make it possible for the universal kin of English-speaking men to hold communion with the loftiest "spirits of the mighty dead;" to put within the reach of all classes complete and accurate editions, carefully and clearly printed upon the best paper, in a convenient form, at a moderate price, of the works of the MASTER-MINDS OF ENGLISH LITERATURE, and occasionally of foreign literature in an attractive English dress.

The Editors, by their scholarship and special study of their authors, are competent to afford every assistance to readers of all kinds: this assistance is rendered by original biographies, glossaries of unusual or obsolete words, and critical and explanatory notes.

The publishers hope, therefore, that these Globe Editions may prove worthy of acceptance by all classes wherever the English Language is spoken, and by their universal circulation justify their distinctive epithet; while at the same time they spread and nourish a common sympathy with nature's most "finely touched" spirits, and thus help a little to "make the whole world kin."

The SATURDAY REVIEW says: "The Globe Editions are admirable for their scholarly editing, their typographical excellence, their compendious form, and their cheapness." The BRITISH QUARTERLY REVIEW says: "In compendiousness, elegance, and scholarliness, the Globe Editions of Messrs. Macmillan surpass any popular series of our classics hitherto given to the public. As near an approach to miniature perfection as has ever been made."

Shakespeare's Complete Works. Edited by W. G. CLARK, M.A., and W. ALDIS WRIGHT, M.A., of Trinity College, Cambridge, Editors of the "Cambridge Shakespeare." With Glossary. pp. 1,075.

The ATHENÆUM says this edition is "a marvel of beauty, cheapness, and compactness. . . . For the busy man, above all for the working student, this is the best of all existing Shakespeares." And the PALL MALL GAZETTE observes: "To have produced the complete works of the world's greatest poet in such a form, and at a price within the reach of every one, is of itself almost sufficient to give the publishers a claim to be considered public benefactors."

Spenser's Complete Works. Edited from the Original Editions and Manuscripts, by R. MORRIS, with a Memoir by J. W. HALES, M.A. With Glossary. pp. lv., 736.

"Worthy—and higher praise it needs not—of the beautiful 'Globe Series.' The work is edited with all the care so noble a poet deserves."—DAILY NEWS.

of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, and Professor of History in Owens College, Manchester. pp. lii., 508.

"Mr. Benham's edition of Cowper is one of permanent value. The biographical introduction is excellent, full of information, singularly neat and readable and modest—indeed too modest in its comments. The notes are concise and accurate, and the editor has been able to discover and introduce some hitherto unprinted matter. Altogether the book is a very excellent one."—SATURDAY REVIEW.
